

Asociacionism in disability ambit: a critical analysis

Eduardo Díaz Velázquez

Universidad de Alcalá de Henares

eduardo.diazv@uah.es

Abstractf:

At what level is the disability associative movement more and more atomized and disperse? Organized on the basis of assistance and attention to functional limitations of people or looking to inequality situations that the whole collective experiences continuously? In which way the entities structural power facilitates or hinders personal autonomy and social integration of people with disabilities? Do disability associations response interests and needs of disabled people families instead of the ones of disabled people themselves? We'll try to answer these in-terrogations.

Keywords: Disability, Associationism, Personal Autonomy, Social Integration.